I am pleased to authorize publication of the 1997 Annual Report of the Illinois Courts. The Report summarizes much of the work of Illinois' judiciary for the 1997 calendar year. Within these pages may be found an overview of the courts' activities and operations, a summary of services and contributions made by the courts' supporting agencies and committees, statistical data on the courts' caseloads, as well as summaries of current programs and initiatives implemented to further improve the administration of justice in our state. I offer this Report as both informative of our courts' past years' efforts and as indicative of our future endeavors.

In 1997 our judicial system continued to experience increased demands. Our trial courts managed the filing of more than four million new cases. Ever increasing demands have required from our courts timely and effective responses. Important resources provided by our legislature have helped us to keep pace with the increasing demands. These resources, coupled with the judiciary's initiatives to improve dispute resolution and to enhance case management, have served to move our state forward and to maintain our judiciary as one of the most efficiently managed systems in the nation.

Beyond the issue of increased demands, there are numerous programs operating within our judicial system which, for their quality and value alone, render them noteworthy. Three new programs further place Illinois' judiciary in the forefront and merit mention here. First is the creation of a mentor program for new judges. Once fully implemented, the mentor program will assist new judges in our state in their transition from the role of attorney to the office of judge. Under this initiative, every new circuit and associate judge will be assigned an experienced judge who will serve, for a period of one year, as the new judge's mentor. By this initiative new judges will gain invaluable insight and training while the judiciary will reap, more immediately, the benefits that new judges bring to the bench.

The second program--the model personal computer education program-- seeks to address and to keep step with the continuing technological advances in our society. Developed by the Illinois Judicial Conference, the computer education program is intended to enable any circuit to work with a local educational institution to create computer education classes tailored, specifically, for the judges of that circuit. The third and final initiative came, also, out of a recommendation of the Illinois Judicial Conference. The Conference strongly encourages participation in continuing judicial education. The Supreme Court has embraced the concept as a proven and necessary component of advancements in our legal system. The Court has, therefore, endorsed the Conference's recommendation.

Responsibility for the overall administration of Illinois' vast court system rests with the Illinois Supreme Court. As acknowledged in this Report, the Court is aided in that function, not only by its committees and boards, but also by the Administrative Office of the Illinois Courts. Under Director Joseph A. Schillaci, the staff at the Administrative Office provides comprehensive services to the three levels of Illinois' courts, as well as to the Supreme Court's standing committees and boards. The structure and services provided by the Administrative Office are summarized in this Report.

Illinois' judiciary has long been embarked on a course which continues to demand the highest levels of competence, foresight, and the most efficient use of available resources. As Chief Justice, I am committed to continue the course. Further, I am more than confident that the many members, agencies and committees of Illinois' judicial branch share that same commitment.

1997 ANNUAL REPORT TO THE

The following report was transmitted to the General Assembly by Chief Justice

ontinuing Judicial Education. Illinois has been a leader in judicial education for over 30 years. The Supreme Court through its Judicial Conference continues to provide quality judicial education programs to the judges of this State. All new judges are required to attend the annual new judge seminar. Additionally, regional seminars are offered throughout the State to maintain a high level of judicial training for new and experienced judges.

While Illinois offers some of the best judicial education opportunities in the nation, we realize that we must continue to enhance our training of new and experienced judges. This year we expanded our educational programs to include enhanced automation training to judges throughout the State. We also inaugurated a statewide New Judge Mentoring Program which will assist each new judge in his or her transition from attorney to judge. The Court also approved the recommendation of its Judicial Conference, which urged more continuing judicial education for our experienced judges.

But if the Illinois judiciary is to continue to improve upon its accomplishments we must resolve to commit more resources to the development of an even more formal, comprehensive judicial education program. Illinois must continue to develop a center for continuing judicial education which leads the nation in preparing judges for the awesome task of judging, as they attempt to meet the high expectations placed upon judges by the people of this State. Additional funding for judicial education will be requested in the Judicial Branch's fiscal year 1999 budget. The General Assembly has addressed the increasing judicial workload by providing additional elected judgeships. We believe that the General Assembly will build on its efforts by favorably responding to our need for additional resources.

S tate-Funded Retirement Systems. In 1997, the General Assembly passed legislation which significantly improved pension benefits for State employees. Beginning January 1, 1998, Public Act 90-65 provided for a new flat rate pension formula for State employees and provides a means to pay for the revision. This change will enhance the security of State employees during their retirement years. The General Assembly is to be commended for this action.

In 1994 the General Assembly approved legislation to begin to address the serious problem of the underfunding of the five state-financed retirement systems. The legislature took the significant step of establishing a long-term solution to achieve a 90% funding ratio by the end of State fiscal year 2045. This plan also commits the State to continuing appropriations of the required contributions to the General Assembly, judges, State employees, State universities, and State teachers retirement systems.

Since the adoption of this legislation, the General Assembly has made all required appropriations for payments to the retirement systems in the amounts certified by the governing boards of trustees of these systems. The General Assembly is also to be commended for continuing to address this significant problem.

R emodeling of the Waterways Building to Serve as a Courthouse for the Appellate Court of the Fourth Judicial District. The 1988 Capitol Complex Plan included renovation of the Waterways Building, located on Monroe Street between First and College Streets in Springfield, for use by the Appellate Court of the Fourth Judicial District. Funds have been appropriated to remodel the building, and initial design work has been completed. However, the project has not progressed beyond the design stage because of the State's fiscal priorities.

The General Assembly is requested to continue appropriating funds for the renovation of the Waterways Building. Relocating the fourth district from the Supreme Court Building to the new location would serve the dual purposes of providing the fourth district with the space necessary to accommodate its needs, while making much needed additional space available in the Supreme Court Building to address the space needs of the Supreme Court.

Provision of the Unified Code of Corrections is Unconstitutional. In Murneigh v. Gainer, S. Ct. Doc. 82042 (September 18, 1997), our court was asked to determine whether section 5-4-3(i) of the Unified Code of Corrections (730 ILCS 5/5-4-3(i)) and two implementing regulations were unconstitutional. Section 5-4-3(i) and the pertinent regulations require Illinois courts to enter orders for the collection of blood from certain convicted sex offenders. Such orders are enforced by the exercise of the court's contempt power.

We found that these provisions violate the separation of powers clause of the Illinois Constitution of 1970 (Ill. Const. 1970, art. II, § 1) on two grounds. First, the provisions vitiate the court's discretion in exercising its contempt power.

NINETIETH ILLINOIS GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Charles E. Freeman on January 30, 1998, as provided for in the Illinois Constitution of 1970.

Second, the provisions attempt to assign to the judiciary a ministerial or administrative duty to process blood collection, which is a nonjudicial task.

We also found, however, that the contempt provisions are severable from the remainder of the blood collection provisions and, therefore, invalidating the contempt provisions does not jeopardize the State's blood collection program.

If the General Assembly determines that the interests of the State need to be addressed in this situation, the Supreme Court urges the General Assembly to cure this statute's constitutional defect.

he Statutory Penalty for Felons Convicted of Failing to Have a Firearm Owner's Identification Card is Unconstitutional. In People v. Davis, S. Ct. Doc. 81358 (October 17, 1997), our court considered the constitutionality of the statutory penalty for felons who violate the Firearm Owners Identification Card Act (430 ILCS 65/0.01 et seq.). We found that violation of the registration requirement, which is a nonprobationable Class 3 felony subject to a minimum two-year sentence, is a less serious offense than unlawful use of a weapon, which is a probational Class 3 felony. We therefore found that the statutory penalty for felons possessing a firearm without proper registration (730 ILCS 5/5-5-3(c)(2)(N), when compared to the penalty for unlawful use of a weapon by a felon (720 ILCS 5/24-1.1), violates the proportionate penalties clause of the Illinois Constitution (Ill. Const. 1970, art. 1, § 11).

If the General Assembly determines that the interests of the State need to be addressed in this situation, the Supreme Court urges the General Assembly to cure this statute's constitutional defects.

Illinois Drug Asset Forfeiture Procedure Act. In People v. $1,124,905 U.S. Currency, S. Ct. Doc. 79106 (September 18, 1997), our court reviewed the propriety of a forfeiture order entered pursuant to the Drug Asset Forfeiture Procedure Act (725 ILCS 150/1 et seq.). As part of this review, we were asked to determine the proper procedure to be followed when a claimant wishes to challenge the sufficiency of a forfeiture complaint.

A majority of the court concluded that a claimant's filing of an answer does not serve to waive the issue of sufficiency. The dissent, however, would have applied the waiver doctrine under the specific facts of the case. It is worth noting that the Illinois Drug Forfeiture Act does not admit of any recognizable pre-answer motion practice and in this respect, the Illinois statute stands in stark contrast to the federal statute upon which the Illinois statute is based.

The Supreme Court submits this matter to the General Assembly for its consideration.

D ismissal of a Petition for Wardship under Section 2-14 of the Juvenile Court Act of 1987. In In re S.G., S. Ct. Doc. 80688 (February 20, 1997), our court was asked to determine whether section 2-14 of the Juvenile Court Act of 1987 (705 ILCS 405/2-14) requires the circuit court to dismiss a petition for adjudication of wardship if the adjudicatory hearing is not completed within the 90-day statutory period. A majority of the court concluded that the petition must be dismissed in this instance. In reaching its conclusion, the majority rejected the argument that section 2-14 does not require dismissal of a petition where the adjudicatory hearing is begun, but not yet completed, within the statutory period.

The Supreme Court submits this matter to the General Assembly for its consideration.

Provision of the Illinois Insurance Code is Unconstitutional. In Milwaukee Safeguard Insurance Company v. Selcke, S. Ct. Doc. 82047 (October 23, 1997), our court found that section 409 of the Illinois Insurance Code (215 ILCS 5/409), which imposes an annual privilege tax on foreign or alien insurance companies, is unconstitutional. We found that section 409 violates the uniformity clause of the Illinois Constitution (Ill. Const. 1970, art. IX, § 2). We reached this conclusion after finding that the classification of foreign and domestic insurance companies in this section does not bear a reasonable relationship to the legislative objective of enhancing the security of Illinois policyholders.

If the General Assembly determines that the interests of the State need to be addressed in this situation, the Supreme Court urges the General Assembly to cure this statute's constitutional defect.

STATE AND LOCAL FUNDING FOR THE COURTS

Financing the state court system is a shared responsibility of the state and the 102 counties of the state. Revenue to provide court services to the people of the state comes from a variety of sources: the state income tax, county property taxes, case filing fees, court-imposed fines and assessments, and other fees.

tate government pays for the salaries, benefits, and office expenses of supreme and appellate court judges, and salaries and benefits of circuit court judges. Effective July 1, 1997, judicial salaries, as determined by the legislature, were: supreme court justices, $130,250; appellate court judges, $122,588; circuit court judges, $112,491; and associate judges, $104,830. The state also pays for support staff of supreme and appellate court judges, staff in other units of the supreme and appellate courts, court reporters and a small number of other personnel in the circuit courts, and mandatory arbitration staff in several counties. Part of the cost of operating the mandatory arbitration program is offset by fees paid by participants in the program. During 1997, the arbitration filing and rejection fees collected amounted to $4,360,813.

State funding for probation departments currently covers almost 2,500 probation personnel. Counties are reimbursed for all salaries of approximately 40% of this number, with the rest reimbursed at the rate of $1,000 per month. At the present time, state funding provides for about 30% of the total cost of probation services in the state.

ounty governments pay part of the cost of financing circuit court operations. Counties provide office and courtroom space, maintenance, and support staff to assist the circuit court judges. Circuit clerks collect money to help pay for their operations and some court operations. They also collect and disburse revenues to help fund local and state government programs, as summarized on the next page.

STATE FUNDING

The pie chart below shows the supreme court's share of the total appropriations for fiscal year 1998 (July 1, 1997 to June 30, 1998). The total appropriation was $35,692,478,100. The appropriation for the courts was $228,515,400.

Source: Table I-A: Appropriations by Agency, Chapter 11 Governor's Budget Message to the General Assembly for Fiscal Year 1999

LOCAL FUNDING

The circuit clerk's office in each county provides a variety of court recordkeeping and financial accounting services. Circuit clerks are elected for four-year terms by the voters in each county. Circuit clerks, with help from deputy clerks, attend sessions of the court, preserve court files and papers, and maintain complete records of all cases. Employees of the clerks' offices are appointed by and are accountable to the circuit clerk, with the county board having budgetary authority. During 1997, the total number of full-time employees in all 102 circuit clerk offices was 4,027, assisted by a total of 380 part-time employees. The cost of operating all circuit clerks' offices totaled $128,421,575 in 1997.

Revenue to pay for these court-related services comes primarily from property taxes, filing fees, and court-ordered fines and costs. Fines, fees and other costs collected by circuit clerks are governed primarily by statute and supreme court rule.

REVENUE TO FINANCE LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Fees and court-ordered fines were collected in 1997 by circuit clerks and earmarked for improvements in the clerks' offices and to help defray the cost to the county of operating the courts at the local level.

REVENUE TO FINANCE OTHER PROGRAMS

In addition to collecting fees for local improvements, circuit clerks receive, account for, and distribute millions of dollars to county governments, various local governmental entities, and various state funds. Some of the programs and dollars collected in 1997 by circuit clerks are listed below:

Youth Drug Abuse Prevention: 12.5% of court-ordered drug fines go to the Department of Human Services to finance programs and services for drug-abuse treatment, and prevention and education services, for juveniles. $309,431

Drug Traffic Prevention: A percentage of certain court-ordered drug fines goes to state law enforcement agencies for use in the enforcement of laws regulating controlled substances and cannabis, and other expenses related to drug offenders. $273,806

Drug Treatment Fund: Court-ordered drug assessments are used to pay for treatment programs for people addicted to alcohol, cannabis, or controlled substances. $2,286,190

Violent Crime Victims Assistance: Court-ordered penalties in criminal and certain traffic cases are used to support victim and witness assistance centers throughout the state. $4,997,493

Domestic Violence Shelter and Service: Court-ordered fines in certain cases go to the Department of Human Services to administer domestic violence shelters and service programs for adults and their dependents who are the subjects of domestic violence. $385,275

Trauma Center Fund: Fees collected in certain traffic, DUI, and criminal cases are used to support Illinois hospitals that are designated as trauma centers. $3,507,044

Traffic and Criminal Conviction Surcharge: An additional penalty imposed in traffic and criminal cases is used for training of law enforcement and correctional officers. $8,777,381

Drivers Education Fund: Penalties and forfeitures in offenses reportable to the Secretary of State are used for driver education programs in high schools. $4,084,505

Child Support and Maintenance

During 1997, circuit clerks collected and distributed $575,519,521 for child support and maintenance -- an increase of 7% over 1996.

Benjamin K. Miller

James D. Heiple

Justice Miller received a Juris Doctor degree from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee. He was in the private practice of law from 1961-1976. In 1976, he was appointed a circuit judge in the seventh circuit by the supreme court and was elected to that position in 1978. He served as circuit judge and chief circuit judge until 1982, when he was elected to the appellate court, fourth district. He served on the appellate court until 1984, when he was elected to the supreme court, serving as chief justice from January 1, 1991 until the end of 1993.

Justice Heiple received a Juris Doctor degree from the University of Louisville, Kentucky. After graduating from law school, he joined his father and brother in the family law firm. From 1957 to 1970, he engaged in the general practice of law with offices in Washington and Pekin. During this time, he also served as an appellate law clerk, a public defender, and a special master in chancery. He was elected a circuit judge in the tenth circuit in 1970. In 1980, he was elected to the appellate court, third district. He was elected to the supreme court in 1990 and served as chief justice from January to May of 1997.

Justice McMorrow received her law degree from Loyola University, Chicago. Prior to being elected a circuit judge in Cook County in 1976, she was engaged in the private practice of law and later appointed an assistant state's attorney of Cook County, assigned to the criminal division. She was assigned to the appellate court for the first district by the supreme court in 1985 and won election to that post in 1986. She was elected to the supreme court in 1992, the first woman to serve on the state's highest court.

Mary Ann G. McMorrow

THE SUPREME COURT

Chief Justice Freeman received a Juris Doctor degree from John Marshall Law School. Early in his career he served as an assistant attorney general, assistant state's attorney, and an attorney for the Board of Election Commissioners. He served as a commissioner on the Illinois Commerce Commission from 1973 to 1976. He was in the private practice of law from 1962 to 1976. In 1976, he was elected a circuit judge in Cook County where he served for ten years. He was elected to the appellate court in 1986 and to the supreme court in 1990 from the first district. Justice Freeman is the first African-American to serve on the supreme court. The supreme court is the state's highest court; it also supervises and administers the state's judicial system. The state is divided into five judicial districts, with three justices elected from the first district (Cook County) and one justice elected from each of the other four districts. Justices are elected in partisan elections for ten years and may be retained in office for additional terms of ten years. A chief justice is elected by the other justices for a term of three years.

Justice Bilandic received a Juris Doctor degree from DePaul University College of Law. Prior to becoming a member of the Chicago City Council in 1969, he was in the private practice of law. He served as a council member until 1976, when he was elected Mayor of the City of Chicago. He is a former master in chancery, Circuit Court of Cook County, and a former Special Assistant Illinois Attorney General. He was elected to the appellate court for the first district in 1984, where he served until his election to the supreme court in 1990. He served as chief justice from January 1, 1994 to December 31, 1996.

Justice Harrison received his LL.B degree from Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri. He was engaged in the private practice of law until he was appointed by the supreme court in 1973 as a circuit judge in the third circuit. He was elected to that position in 1974. In 1979, the supreme court assigned him to the appellate court, fifth district and he was elected to that court in 1980. In 1992, he was elected to the supreme court from the fifth district.

Michael A. Bilandic

Moses W. Harrison II

Justice Nickels received his Juris Doctor degree from DePaul University College of Law. He was engaged in the private practice of law for over twenty years before entering the Illinois judiciary. He served as a circuit court judge in the sixteenth circuit from 1982 to 1990 and an appellate court judge in the second district from 1990 to 1992. He was elected to the supreme court in 1992 from the second district.

JUDICIAL CONFERENCE

Alternative Dispute Resolution Coordinating Committee Judge Robert E. Byrne 18th Circuit Chair

During this conference year, the committee monitored the introduction of numerous changes in the operation of court-annexed mandatory arbitration including the expansion of arbitration into the Eleventh Circuit; Du Page County's pilot project which allows cases seeking up to $50,000 in money damages to be filed in arbitration; and the supreme court's policy prohibiting full-time government employees from acting as arbitrators. Court-annexed mandatory arbitration is now operating in eleven counties around the state. The committee also monitored the progress of major civil case mediation programs operating around the state.

Automation and Technology Committee Judge R. Peter Grometer 16th Circuit Chair During the year, the committee continued assessing issues relating to privacy and public access to automated court records, and began working on an update of the 1993 Judicial Education Survey. The committee also suggested that the computer education for judges piloted by the committee in 1996 be implemented statewide; requested permission to obtain the assistance of the Administrative Office of the Illinois Courts in establishing an electronic bulletin board system; and requested permission to begin development of a statewide judicial information system.

Committee on Criminal Law and Probation Administration Judge Thomas A. Hett Circuit Court of Cook County Chair

Noting the high cost of incarceration and overcrowding of IDOC facilities, the committee began to study alternatives to incarceration for offenders charged with nonviolent or minor drug offenses. Alternatives include community correction programs such as drug treatment, day reporting, community service, intensive probation, and administrative sanctions. Community correction programs serve to rehabilitate and reeducate the offender and may therefore lower the rate of repeat offenders. The committee also began work on a policy statement which will recommend changing the focus of state funding from incarceration to community correction programs. Finally, the committee updated the Guide to Intermediate Sanctions in Illinois, using a survey conducted by the Probation Division of the Administrative Office of the Illinois Courts.

Committee on Discovery Procedures Judge Dale A. Cini 5th Circuit Chair During the year, the committee designed and analyzed the results of a survey intended to elicit information on how well the amended discovery rules are working. Survey questions covered areas such as depositions, interrogatories, case management conferences, and sanctions. The survey was sent to 300 judges statewide who routinely hear civil discovery matters, and the response rate was 56.67%. In addition, the committee created a task force to draft standard interrogatories for use in medical malpractice cases pursuant to Supreme Court Rule 213(j). The committee also reviewed two proposals forwarded to the committee by the Rules Committee and began preliminary work on developing ways to address discovery-related problems encountered by the medical profession.

COMMITTEE ACTIVITIES

During the year, the committee conducted a New Judge Seminar, seven regional seminars, five mini-seminars, and two court management programs and planned a comprehensive schedule of seminars to be conducted through June 1998. The committee videotaped selected seminars for inclusion in the Resource Lending Library and reported that the Library's patron base had grown to 52% of the judicial population, up from 35% last year. In addition, the committee sponsored the distribution of free government publications to judges and established a working group to develop a proposal to obtain funding for an annual seminar on issues related to driving under the influence of alcohol.

During the year, the committee produced a third edition of the Illinois Manual for Complex Civil Litigation, which incorporates recent tort reform legislation and the amended supreme court rules governing discovery procedures. This manual provides judges with practical information on managing complex civil cases. In addition, the committee completed the Illinois Manual for Complex Criminal Litigation. The manual provides information about practices that Illinois judges have found effective when hearing complex criminal matters.

The committee reviewed and monitored lengthy and complex legislation proposed by the state legislature to implement omnibus juvenile justice reform. Cumulatively, the legislative proposals totaled over 1,000 pages and different versions were known as either the Juvenile Justice Reform Act of 1997 or the Juvenile Justice Reform Provisions of 1997. Neither proposal became law during the 1997 legislative session. The committee also began a multi-year effort to revise the Juvenile Law Benchbook by changing its format and consolidating the past three supplements to the Benchbook.

he court of "original jurisdiction" is the circuit court. There are twenty-two circuits in the state, three of which are single county circuits (Cook, Will, and Du Page). The remaining nineteen circuits contain two to twelve counties per circuit.

he circuit court can decide, with few exceptions, any kind of case. The exceptions are redistricting of the general assembly and the ability of the governor to serve or resume office. The circuit court also shares jurisdiction with the supreme court to hear cases relating to revenue, mandamus, prohibition, and habeas corpus. However, if the supreme court chooses to exercise its jurisdiction over these cases, the circuit court may not decide them. Finally, the circuit court also reviews administrative orders from certain state agencies.

here are two kinds of judges in the circuit court: circuit judges and associate judges. Circuit judges are elected for six years, may be retained by voters for additional six year terms, and can hear any kind of case. Circuit judges are elected on a circuit-wide basis or from the county where they reside. In Cook County, circuit judges are elected from the entire county or as resident judges from each of the fifteen subcircuits within the county. Associate judges are appointed by circuit judges, under supreme court rules, for four-year terms. An associate judge can hear any case, except criminal cases punishable by a prison term of one year or more, unless the associate judge has received approval from the supreme court to hear other criminal cases.

hen needed, the supreme court has the authority to assign a circuit or associate judge temporarily to a different circuit. A retired judge who agrees can be assigned by the supreme court to hear cases. At the end of 1997 there were 843 judges in the circuit courts -- 486 circuit judges and 357 associate judges.

ircuit judges in a circuit elect one of their members to serve as chief circuit court judge. Cases may be assigned to general or specialized divisions by the chief judge who has general administrative authority in the circuit, subject to the overall administrative authority of the supreme court.

CIRCUIT COURT ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS

Conference of Chief Circuit Judges. The conference meets regularly to consider problems relating to the administration of the circuit courts and other matters referred to the conference by the supreme court. The twenty-two chief judges are members of the conference. Judge John W. Rapp Jr., chief judge of the fifteenth circuit, served as chair and Judge Michael R. Weber, chief judge of the fourth circuit, served as vice-chair. In 1997, both were re-elected for another two year term.

Conference Committees: Article V Committee; Child Support Advisory Committee; Court Reporting Committee; Juvenile Committee; Prison Committee; and Probation Commitee. Among the conference's many activities during the year were the approval of an automated citation pilot progam; approval of a single uniform record layout for automated traffic and conservation violations and overweight compaints; the adoption of a uniform sentencing order; and the distribution of an inmate handbook for the dissolution of marriage. Additionally, the conference researched the concept of community corrections; made recommendations to the supreme court revising court reporter regulations, which were subsequently approved; and monitored the implementation of proposed statewide judicial evaluations as well as pending juvenile legislation.

CASE CATEGORIES

CIVIL: lawsuits for monetary damages; arbitration; small claims (amounts up to $5,000); chancery (e.g., title to real property and injunctions); miscellaneous remedy (e.g., review of decisions of administrative bodies, habeas corpus matters, and demolition); probate (e.g., estates of deceased persons and guardianships); order of protection (petition for order of protection filed separately from an existing case); dissolution (e.g., divorce, separate maintenance, and annulment); mental health (e.g., commitment and discharge from mental facilities); eminent domain (e.g., compensation when property is taken for public use); municipal corporation and tax (e.g., matters pertaining to the organization of municipalities and collection of taxes at the local level); adoptions; family (e.g., proceedings to establish parent-child relationship and actions relating to child support). CRIMINAL: felony (e.g., a criminal case in which the offense carries a penalty of at least one year in prison) and misdemeanor. OTHER: ordinance, conservation, traffic (excluding parking tickets), and DUI. JUVENILE: abuse and neglect, delinquent, and other (e.g., a minor who requires authoritative intervention).

Saline County Courthouse Harrisburg

Separated from Gallatin County in 1847, a year before the second state constitution became effective, the county was the ninety-eighth established by the state legislature. The first county seat was Raleigh, selected over Galatia and Mitchellsville. The old log courthouse was replaced by a two-story brick structure in 1854. The county court continued to meet in Raleigh until 1858. In 1859, Harrisburg became the county seat. The first Harrisburg courthouse was a two-story brick structure used until the second courthouse was built in 1905. The second courthouse was three stories high. In 1938 an addition was built on the south side. The building was razed in 1967. The third Harrisburg courthouse (shown above) was completed in 1970. (Saline County Historical Society photo)

White County Courthouse Carmi

Several years before Illinois became a state, settlers began building log houses in an area referred to as Hay's Mill or Hargrave's Store. Among those in the area in the early 1800's was Captain Leonard White, U. S. Agent and postmaster at the Saline who also served as a judge of the court of common pleas in the Illinois Territory, later serving as a member of the Constitutional Convention. White County was established in 1815 and county officials were appointed by the Governor of the Illinois Territory, Ninian Edwards. The first frame courthouse erected near the public well in 1820 was destroyed by a wind storm four years later. From 1824 to 1831 court was held in the homes of county officials. The second courthouse was completed in 1831 and also served as the community center where residents attended dances, stage plays, town meetings, and church. Built on the site of the second, the third courthouse (shown above) was completed in 1883. (White County Historical Society photo)

Carthage Officially designated a county in 1825, and named for the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, the people waited several years for a county seat and their first courthouse. In 1829, at Fort Edwards (Warsaw), voters elected county officials who conducted business in residences and other buildings along the Mississippi River. In 1833, a state-appointed commission decided to place the county seat at Carthage and county officials approved the construction of the first courthouse, a log cabin with wooden benches for seats. The second courthouse, a two-story brick structure, was built in 1839. In the first case heard in the new courthouse, Abraham Lincoln unsuccessfully defended a man accused of murder. An addition was built in 1868. Its tin dome and tall cupola are mentioned in Mark Twain's Roughing IL. In 1908 the third courthouse (shown above) was erected on the site of the second. Made of white Bedford stone with a red tile roof, the building had several hundred lights and such modern conveniences as inside toilets, and cost almost $118,000. Today. lights and such modern conveniences as inside toilets, and cost almost $118,000. Today, one window depicting justice is reported to be worth more than several times the original cost of the building. On top of the dome stands "Miss Justice." (Hancock County Historical Society photo)

Winnebago County Courthouse Rockford

Four years after the Black Hawk War when the Potawatomi and Winnebago were compelled to cede land in northern Illinois, the state legislature established six counties. In January 1836, Will, Winnebago, Whiteside, Ogle, McHenry, and Kane were added to the sixty counties already in existence. The county's first courthouse was a church purchased in 1840. In 1844, the second courthouse was built after a tug-of-war between people on the east and west side of the Rock River. The west-side group won after they offered $20,000 towards the construction of the public building. The third courthouse on the present courthouse square was finished in 1878. During construction eleven people lost their lives when the dome collapsed on them. In 1916 an addition was built. It was in this courthouse that Clarence Darrow came to the defense of Arther Person who was charged with conspiracy against the government. The present courthouse (shown above) was built in 1968. The Executive Office is responsible for oversight of activities of all divisions of the Administrative Office. The primary function of the Executive Office is the coordination of the Administrative Office's staff support and services to the Supreme Court and the Court's committees. The Executive Office is the clearing-house for all issues and matters presented to the Administrative Office. It also provides secretariat services to the Illinois Courts Commission.

* * *

The Administrative Services Division consists of four units that provide technical and support services to the Judicial Branch: Budget, Vouchering, Pavroll, and Human Resources. The Budget Unit works closely with the Director of the Administrative Office to develop the Judicial Branch budget, as well as to provide daily accounting of expenditures and projected operating This unit also provides procurement and costs. inventory control, maintains contracts and leases, and carries out all other fiscal reporting requirements. Ad hoc reports are generated for these and related services to the Director and to Supreme, Appellate and Circuit Courts and their support units. The Vouchering Unit processes all payment vouchers for the Supreme Court, the Appellate Court, the state-paid functions of the Circuit Courts, and the Administrative Office. At the conclusion of the most recent fiscal year, the Administrative Services Division processed in excess of 60,000 payment vouchers for the Judicial Branch. The Vouchering Unit also maintains all accounting records for the expenditure of resources appropriated by the General Assembly. The Payroll Unit maintains all payroll records for current state-paid Judicial Branch employees and limited records of previous employees. The unit works with the office of the Comptroller in processing the payroll for over 2,200 current Judicial Branch employees. The Human Resources Unit provides personnel services to the Judicial Branch employees by coordinating employee benefit programs with the Department of Central Management Services. These benefits include health, dental and life insurance, as well as workers' compensation. The Human Resources Unit also works with Judicial Branch employees and managers in administering the Judicial Branch Classification and Compensation Plan and the sick and vacation leave benefits.

The Court Services Division is involved in a wide range of activities and projects affecting judges, circuit clerks, court reporters, and the Judicial Branch of government generally. Responsibilities include staffing judicial committees, production of the Judicial Conference Report, and production of this report. The division provides legislative support services to the Supreme Court, and prepares summaries of pending and enacted legislation to chief circuit judges and circuit clerks. During 1997, labor relations attorneys represented judicial employers in collective bargaining in approximately 35 counties. Areas of support for circuit clerks include implementation of Automation Disposition Reporting, which now operates in 35 counties, and production of a comprehensive Manual on Fines and Fees which was distributed to clerks and chief circuit judges. During the year, staff made relevant changes to the Manual on Recordkeeping. The merged jury list project, compiling names from registered voters and licensed drivers, served 91 counties. The division administered several examinations to court reporter candidates during the year and distributed amended administrative regulations for court reporting services. During 1997, staff assisted chief judges in four circuits (Fourth, Twelfth, Twenty-first, and Fourth Municipal Cook) with family violence symposiums convened for multi-disciplinary attendees. The first edition of the Domestic Violence Benchbook was completed with assistance from an advisory committee of judges.

The Judicial Education Division, reestablished as a separate division in 1997, is the primary unit in the Administrative Office for administrative oversight of judicial education for judges and other court personnel. Seminars for judges are planned by the Judicial Conference Committee on Education, with Judicial Education providing staff support. The division also provides staff support to individual seminar committees which number about fifteen per year. Part of this support responsibility is to assist faculty in integrating principles of adult education into their presentations. Judicial Education also works with other AOIC divisions to plan and conduct education and training programs for circuit clerks, court reporters, and court administration staff. This year these activities included training for circuit clerks and clerks' staff on the newly issued Manual on Fines and Fees, as well as the annual Official Court Reporter Seminar. The division operates the Resource Lending Library for judges and other court personnel which makes available, through loans and contributions to permanent personal libraries. videotapes, audiotapes, reading materials from past seminars and other publications of interest on a wide variety of topics. The division also assists staff from other AOIC divisions by providing meeting planning services throughout the year.

The Judicial Management Information Services

Division provides computer hardware and software to the offices and staff of the Supreme and Appellate Courts, the Supreme Court support units, and all divisions within the Administrative Office. JMIS responds to the needs of the Judicial Branch for information processing by analyzing processes, designing applications and/or procuring computer equipment and programs. JMIS also provides ongoing support and maintenance for computer hardware, software and related equipment. In addition, JMIS provides support services to personnel of the Judicial Branch through a service-oriented philosophy which includes training personnel on the operation of equipment as well as a Help Desk facility which provides a focal point for user contact and problem resolution. In 1997 JMIS continued to develop the existing client/server environment, providing the Judicial Branch with economies of scale and flexibility in addressing the changing court requirements.

The Probation Services Division provides services to chief judges and their probation staffs in all circuits. The division sets statewide standards for hiring and promoting probation officers; maintains a list of qualified applicants for probation positions; develops training programs for new and promoted probation officers; develops and monitors operational standards for probation departments; monitors the development of annual plans in each probation department; gathers statewide statistics and publishes reports; and establishes standards for probation department compensation plans. The division also develops and monitors innovative probation programs to enhance the services and sanctions for offenders supervised in the community and to provide effective alternatives to imprisonment. With the assistance of federal funding via a major new training grant to supplement existing resources for staff development, the Administrative Office was able to significantly expand and enhance professional training programs for circuit court probation personnel in 1997. A wide range of basic and advanced training initiatives was offered, and special priority was given to training in staff safety and awareness. The Administrative Office also assisted several probation departments in securing federal grants to implement specialized supervision programs for sex offenders, domestic violence perpetrators, and "at risk" juvenile delinquents. These program grants were awarded to probation departments in Champaign, Christian, Coles, Du Page, Madison, Peoria, Vermilion, and Winnebago Counties.
