Court Interpreter Orientation and Testing Announcement

2025 SAVE-THE-DATE

PART 1: ORIENTATION

To be placed on the AOIC Court Interpreter Registry, candidates must attend a two-day orientation. This orientation is open to anyone at least 18 years of age with native-like proficiency in English and a second language. It covers the interpreter's role and professional ethics, modes of interpreting used in court, legal terminology, and court protocol.

Candidates may decide whether they'd like to take the written exam before or after the two-day orientation. Self-study is encouraged before taking the written and oral exams to reinforce and expand on what was covered in the orientation.

Do you have the skills necessary to be a certified court interpreter?

1. Possess educated, native-like mastery of both English and a second language;
2. Display wide general knowledge, typical of what a minimum of two years of general education at a college or university would provide; and
3. Perform the three major types of court interpreting: sight, consecutive and simultaneous.

If numbers 1 & 2 describe you, and you are willing to develop the skills for number 3, court interpreting may be for you.

What materials are used for training and testing?

Illinois belongs to the Council of Language Access Coordinators through the National Center for State Courts (NCSC). Our program is based on their model and uses their recommended practices and exams.

Will the AOIC offer reciprocity?

Yes, Illinois accepts completion of most states' orientation and proof of NCSC exam scores, and proof of federal certification. If all other certification requirements are met, such candidates will be listed on the Registry. Sign language and deaf interpreters must attend the two-day orientation and submit proof of Advanced or Master's level licensure with the Illinois Deaf and Hard of Hearing Commission to be listed on the Registry. Sign language and deaf interpreters are not tested by the AOIC.

Do I have to go through all three phases if I teach language, already interpret, and took several years of language training?

Yes, everyone working toward certification must participate in all three phases.

How much work is there?

It varies by where you are located, where you are willing to travel and your language set. The need for interpreters across the state is high, but funding to hire interpreters varies by county. As an independent contractor, the circuit county courts contact interpreters on an "as needed" basis.
